The Old Bazaar

The Old Bazaar (Albanian: Pazari i vjetër; Serbian: Стари базар / Stari bazar) in Gjakova is the oldest bazaar in Kosovo[a] (also known as Çarshia e Madhe (Grand Bazaar) or Dakovica. Mëhalla e Hadumit, the historical neighborhood where it is located also houses the city's oldest mosque, the Hadum Mosque (Xhamia e Hadumit), which dates from the 15th century. The Old Bazaar was burnt and destroyed and then it was reconstructed after suffering damage during the 1999 war (the last war in Kosovo). The bazaar is linked to the city centre, just five minutes away via the IslamBegu Bridge. The bazaar covers an area of about 35,000 m2 (380,000 sq ft) and the length of its main road is 1 km, with about 500 shops situated along it.

The Hadum Mosque

The Hadum Mosque (Albanian: Xhamia e Hadumit, Turkish: Hadım Camisi) in Gjakova, Kosovo was built in the last decade of the 16th century (1594/95) and was financed by Hadum Sylejman Efendia – Hadum Aga, which explains the name of the mosque. The mosque was built on the property of Jakë Vula and is located in the Old Bazaar.

A rectangular, dome-covered structure, it belongs to the classic forms of mosque of the Islamic-Kosovar style. Around the mosque there are tombs with sculpted decorations and engraved with epithets in the old Ottoman language. The tombs belonged to the most respected families in Gjakova. There also used to be a "hamam", but it was destroyed during World War II. The entrances are covered with floral paintings, geometrical shapes, citations from the Qur'an and arabesques. In 1999, the surrounding complex was burned to the ground and only the mosque and the minaret along with some damaged arabesques survived.

Sheh Emin's Tekke

The tekke belongs to Saadi order. It was constructed in 1730, and it was reconstructed in 1856 by Sheh Emin himself, a known Gjakova's architect, who designed many buildings and different architectural complexes.

In the architectural aspect, the building belongs to civic national architecture. It presents a complex of buildings with tekke, mausoleum, samahane (praying room), springs, houses and other buildings. In its interior as well as exterior it is rich with decorative elements of carved wood. This building is famous for its guest room in the upper floor shaped as an octagonal.

Kompleksi Memorial Meje

Meja Memorial Complex - This memorial complex was built in honor of the 377 martyrs of the Meja Massacre. The Meja massacre was carried out by the Serbian state apparatus on April 27, 1999 in the village of Meje, near Gjakova. In this massacre, 377 civilians were executed in a genocidal manner, mainly men, Albanians, Muslims and Catholics regardless of religion. After the massacre, the bodies of the massacred were put in trucks and sent to mass graves in Serbia, to hide the traces of the crime. Some of the massacred are still missing. The memorial complex started to be built in 2013, by the Municipality of Gjakova.
